

JOIN THE RUGBY FOR NATURE SQUAD

From shamrocks to springboks, silver ferns and red roses, wallabies, cockerels and toucans – wherever we look, nature is deeply connected with the heart and soul of our game. But with the impacts of climate change and biodiversity loss, rugby, our communities and our planet are all under increasing threat. Join the #RugbyforNature Squad, build your score and help secure the win for rugby and nature!

PHASE ONE: THE TRY

Get over the goal line with five actions:

1 Form a diverse 'Nature Squad' and work as a team for environmental action.

2 Whether you're a team, club, school or union, assess your impact on nature by mapping activity, challenges and opportunities.

3 Draft and share your nature game plan with clear goals.

4 Prioritise nature conservation on and off the playing field.

5 Give nature a home by installing wildlife boxes, bug hotels, bird baths and wild patches.

DID YOU KNOW?

World Rugby was one of the first sporting bodies pledging to protect biodiversity through the Sports for Nature Framework.

PHASE TWO: THE CONVERSION

Aim for the posts and extend your lead:

6 Choose sustainable, local and plant-based foods for health and planet.

7 Collaborate with suppliers for nature-friendly products and practices.

DID YOU KNOW?

Rainforest the size of 87 rugby pitches is cut down every minute.

PHASE THREE: THE DROP GOAL

Over the bar for a match-winning score!

8 Engage, educate and mobilise players, fans and your community for nature.

9 Celebrate, inspire and expand the impact of Rugby for Nature.

10 Track impacts of actions and push for continuous improvement.
